

DERECHOS DE FIRMA (FEES FOR SIGNATURE)

Derechos de Firma stamps were used on many documents which required the signature of an official of the Government. Among these documents were: Appointment of officials and employees of the Government; licenses permitting foreigners to enter, reside in and depart from the Philippines; licenses for the construction of ships, to have a billiard table, for the use of firearms, for the opening of factories or industrial establishments, commissions to contractors of the various branches of trade; permits for loading cargo aboard ships and other customs documents; Royal Cédulas for the privilege of invention or introduction of new methods or practices.
